

Anne Sutherland is a professional artist, entrepreneur and teacher. She grew up in the rural community of Roxbury, NY, in the Catskill Mountains, influenced by the beauty of mountains and nature around her. A broad educational career began in the public schools where she taught at the elementary level with a degree in Elementary Education and music. She is primarily self-taught, with no formal art training.

Anne began oil painting during summer breaks with Jeanne Hastings in Lake George, learning a color theory she still uses today. She began showing her work at LARAC, Crandall Library, The Stockade Show and The Roxbury Arts Show in the 1970's.

In 1983, Anne began an art business teaching drawing and painting to children and adults, The Art Room, Glens Falls. The business grew to 350 students a week, a building, an art store and a large faculty of art instructors. Selling the business with a family opportunity to live in Finland, Anne gained plein-air painting skills and taught art at the International School in Helsinki. Later, living and working as an artist on the island of Nantucket expanded Anne's art and entrepreneurial career including Sketching Tours of Nantucket and Paris, Nantucket Oil Workshops, and a house portrait business Your Home...Your Notecards while painting the magnificent landscape. Enriched by the friendships of the professional art community of Nantucket, teaching and immersed in drawing and painting, Anne gained gallery affiliations which continue today.

Solo and Group Shows at South Wharf Gallery, East End Gallery and Old Spouter Gallery continued on Nantucket while receiving recognition for painting and entrepreneurial efforts including Plein Aire Painter of the Year, Channel 5 Boston Chronicle, The Boston Globe, Cape Cod Travel Guide and Frommer's Budget Travel Magazine 100 picks around the world. After almost 20 years on Nantucket, she and husband Jim Sutherland retired to be closer to family. Anne works in a renovated carriage house behind their house in upstate farming community in Greenwich, NY.
